The Public Art Master Plan is primarily intended to identify and prioritize potential sites and opportunities for new public art within the City and to provide principles and

- Timing considerations;
- Providing a diverse range opportunities for artists and the needs of the arts community; and,
- Council direction.

In addition to implementing public art projects, a number of new public art initiatives have been undertaken since the last Master Plan update in 2012 including:
- Continuing participation on the City Graffiti Working Group, to incorporate public art into anti-graffiti strategies;
- Continuing participation on Neighbourhood Development Strategy teams to incorporate public art into community-led neighbourhood improvement initiatives; and,
- Worked with procurement and legal staff to create the Public Art Call for Artists Policy allowing for a more efficient and flexible method to acquire public art that is the responsibility of public art staff.
Financial and Staffing Update:

In 2012, $220,160 was spent to implement public art projects including contract, artist fees, fabrication, installation, maintenance and selection process costs. A detailed list of public art projects is outlined in Appendix A to Report PED13066.

Approximately $980,000 is required to complete currently committed public art projects, of which $850,000 will be sourced from the budgets of specific Capital projects such as the Battlefield Park Master Plan, leaving $130,000 to be sourced from Public Art Capital Project ID 7101058705 and Public Art Reserve Fund 108044.

The current financial status of the Public Art Program is summarized as follows:

Funds in Public Art Capital Account as of January 1, 2013 $376,380
Funds in Public Art Reserve Fund as of January 1, 2013 $299,714
TOTAL FUNDS AVAILABLE as of January 1, 2013 $676,094
Anticipated costs from Public Art Accounts $130,000
Balance remaining to fund uncommitted projects from Public Art Accounts $546,094

There are 14 uncommitted projects that have been identified as priorities listed on Page 3 of this report with a budget estimated at approximately $1.4 M. The $900,000 of that amount is sourced from Public Art Capital and Reserve and the remainder from other project specific Capital accounts. It is anticipated that projects will be implemented in future as funds become available through the annual block funding from the Capital Budget or other project specific budgets.

At present, funding for City of Hamilton public art projects exists primarily through two funding sources:

1. Annual Block Funding

From 2007 to 2010, the annual financial allocation for public art projects from the Capital Budget was $250,000. No funding was provided in 2011. In 2012, $191,000 was provided. For 2013, $182,000 has been approved. This amount is currently forecast to be reduced in future years.

2. Capital Project Budgets

Several Master Planning and Capital Improvement Projects led by other City Departments have identified a need for the inclusion of public art, and internal partnerships continue to be built to this end. Public art at the Binbrook Parkette, Battlefield Park and the Carter Park Mural are examples of how cohesive internal planning can help broaden a project to include public art, and heighten the overall impact of the development.

Public Art Master Plan Review:

Public Art Master Plan Recommendation 22 states: Review and update the Public Art Master Plan every three years.

Tourism and Culture Division staff undertook a review of the procurement aspects of public art in 2012 and will continue to review various aspects of the Public Art Master Plan in 2013. This review will: evaluate the success of implementing the plan and recommendations to date; revise or develop recommendations to maximize the quality, impact and process of the Public Art Program. This will be achieved through a review of the following:

1. Ongoing and new funding mechanisms;
2. Determining the area and scope for new public art projects; and,
3. Other issues identified through consultation.

Consultation with the public, stakeholders and City staff will be an integral part of this review.

Public Art Program Background:

Definition of Public Art:

Cities around the world are increasingly realizing the economic and social benefits, and quality of life enhancements that flow from creativity and investment in culture and the expression of a community’s culture through mediums such as public art. In addition to bringing vibrancy to a city’s public spaces, public art is a tremendous source of civic pride and conveys the identity and cultural image of a city to its residents and visitors.

Public art is defined by the City of Hamilton as:

Art created by artists or in collaboration with artists through a public process and existing in publicly accessible City property. The process is a City led formal selection method; whereby, artists are invited to share their vision to enhance public places through the medium of art for the benefit of all residents and visitors.

Examples of public art could include the following:

Lighting, multi-media murals, street furniture, sculptures, landscape and amenity designs. Public art can be permanent or temporary in nature depending on the scope of the project and materials used. Public art can be functional, designed to be partially or fully integrated into the city’s infrastructure, or commissioned to engage public space.
The Public Art Selection Process:

The current public art process is a City led formal selection method whereby artists can submit proposals to projects for select sites identified in the Public Art Master Plan and projects identified in internal planning documents.

The public art process involves community consultation, in the form of a stakeholder focus group and/or public meeting, to determine a theme or goals for the project. During the competition period, a public input phase allows for the public to submit comments on the finalists, either online or in select locations that are easily accessible. Selection of finalists is decided by a jury of volunteer citizens representative of a broad range of backgrounds, skills and experience. The adjudication criteria weigh public comments equally with the other relevant criteria.

The principles of the public art program include: encouraging new ideas and reflecting a variety of artistic expression; demonstrating excellence in creativity and design; reflecting community history; creating public art through an open and transparent process.

7.0 CONSERVATION & MAINTENANCE

The public art program maintains a regular conservation program for the works owned by the City. As mandated in the Public Art Master Plan, 10% of each public art commission is channeled into a reserve account for continued care and conservation. This must be kept in reserve, to ensure the longevity of the work in line with standard best practices.
